Forecast for Monday 19 Sep 2022

Weather: Any mist or fog patches soon clearing during the morning, otherwise a dry and bright start with some sunshine. However, clouding over with some light rain or drizzle across Craig Meagaidh and Ben Alder later in the afternoon, and this spreading slowly east across the Cairngorms and Ladder hills during the evening.

Chance of cloud-free hill tops above 800m: 70%, reducing 20% across western ranges by the end of the afternoon.

Low cloud and visibility: Poor in early mist or fog patches, otherwise good visibility with most of the many summits clear of cloud at first, but broken or extensive cloud, bases 400-600 metres, forming in the light rain across western ranges later in afternoon, and this will spread slowly east during the evening. Moderate or poor visibility at times in rain and drizzle.
